SCHÖNOX INTRODUCES NEXT GENERATION OF SYNTHETICS

New Hybrid Active Dry Technology Combines Benefits of Cement and Synthetic Gypsum Based Products

Florence, AL – July 6, 2018

The Schönox family of self levelers has grown with the addition of two revolutionary compounds—AP Rapid and AP Rapid Plus. The new products feature an innovative Hybrid Active Dry Technology that offers benefits of both cement and synthetic gypsum based materials.

The Schönox research and development team has studied this technology for years perfecting the dust-reduced, pumpable, self leveling compounds for a versatile, worry-free application. This hybrid technology is constructed by blending specific additives into Schönox cement and Schönox Synthetic Gypsum to unite the two counterparts. This precise binding formula contributes to the unique hybrid features, such as early drying and curing time, prompt strength development, and reduced shrinkage/ expansion. Thus, providing same-day floor covering and walkability for high layer thickness installations without the need of aggregation.

Schönox AP Rapid and AP Rapid Plus are suitable for jobs of all variances. The hybrid compounds are designed to withstand varying climate and humidity settings during interior installation. AP Rapid and AP Rapid Plus also feature the benefit of installing over very diverse substrate materials and conditions. The compounds' water ratios have been considered with the installer in mind, presenting a very low risk of over-watering. Other benefits of the new hybrid technology include high psi (5800-6300), low pH (<11.5), very low emissions (EC-1 PLUS R), UL classification, LEED contribution, a 12-month storage period, and an extended pot life.

Schönox AP Rapid and AP Rapid Plus are available for purchase through Schönox, HPS North America.
